each of us. Someone didn't raise their son properly, someone just turned a blind eye to it, someone just didn't care, because it doesn't concern him.

In essence, the offender is the person to whom the crime was previously committed. It is the children who then become criminals. This is the so-called chain reaction. From generation to generation.

The reason as such is why this crime was committed, and under what pretext. Most of them are committed in a state of intoxication, not only adults but also minors. As a decision, the sale of alcoholic beverages should be banned, and those who carry out this action should be prosecuted not only administratively but also criminally.

Will be careful and monitor the actions of people who you think are possible offenders, and in case of a sexual crime against you or your acquaintances to report to the appropriate structures.

For example, in America, special settlements have been created where people who have previously committed sexual crimes live and are under administrative supervision or house arrest. They are being monitored by psychologists and police officers to record their activities. Their activity and movement is recorded by a special bracelet. It is created for the purpose of supervision over the person, detection of its mental condition and fixing of a location. Also in Japan, from junior classes created items that are provided for the purpose of sex education.

From childhood, children are brought up to have sex. Some people will say that this is nonsense, why offend the child's psyche by talking about such things, but there is another side that really gives a really desirable result in other countries.

Children from childhood understand that it is bad, it is not necessary to do so, and in the future may bring to the notice of other children, which will lead to awareness and certain results.

We will repeat once again that it all starts with each of us, whoever we are, wherever we live, in whatever social status we are, all behind us, all our actions or inaction are my certain consequences and lead to problems, about which it is impossible to be silent and hide.

In conclusion, everyone should be sensitive to each other and support in difficult and incomprehensible situations, try to find out what happened to the person and who was the offender, to make decisions in hot pursuit.

THE INTEGRATION OF WORLD STANDARDS IN THE POLICE EDUCATION AND TRAINING IN UKRAINE

Police education and training is the basis of the internal security system. Every day it becomes more difficult to investigate crimes and the level of threats is growing, that is why police officers need to be open to new approaches. Of course I must admit that policing is an area of community engagement, and the role of the police in democratic society is becoming increasingly important. Close interaction and networking with citizens, who belong to different strata of society and have different ethnic backgrounds, need social and cultural literacy of the police. Well-educated and well-trained police officers are more adapted and ready for resolving problem, creative thinking and demonstrating liberality. Strength and professional qualities, which depend on the education and training of police officers, are very important for their good work [1].

Since 2014 Ukraine has been on a difficult way of reforming the law enforcement system. One of the main tasks was to transform the old corrupt militia into a modern police. The key goal of the reform is to achieve the highest standards of professionalism, quality, rapid response, full respect for fundamental human rights, publicity, fairness and competence.

The beginning of police reform in Ukraine was the creation of a modern patrol police in 2015. What is more the new police have inspired many Ukrainians, as a result the level of trust in the police has increased. This was a significant step towards creating a modern law enforcement system focused on service delivery, protection and service to citizens. In November 2015 the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Ukraine formed National Police of Ukraine.

One of basic elements of the reform is restructuring of education and training of the police. International experience in police education is extremely important for identifying and implementing the most perspective national solutions for police education and training in various fields.

The OSCE Project Coordinator in Ukraine supports the integration of modern standards in the police education. So, the police models of the participating countries and the training of future police officers in this countries were analyzed. Within the cooperation, experience was exchanged on various issues. Ukraine's goal was to gain knowledge to provide support for police training focused on police compliance with the rule of law and public safety, as well as to improve the functioning of the police education system.

Of course, the police models of other countries differ from the Ukrainian one, but the education system is quite similar. Thus, most police training facilities in European participating countries report directly to the police or the Ministry of Internal Affairs, but are mostly funded by the Ministry. As in Ukraine, there are specially created educational institutions which train police officers depending on their specialization. Initial training is defined as the initial training of recruits, which had been civilians, focused on teaching them basic competencies police. Such institutions have specially equipped rooms for physical training, fire training and driving skills, where cadets can practice practical skills. Institutions often provide dormitories or hostels, as cadets must live there. Most institutions, along with regular teachers, involve current police officers, as this is obviously for the development of practical skills of cadets. So without hesitation I can say that Ukraine is not far behind in their implementation [1].

It is worth noting that with the even greater appearance of various gadgets and the development of science and technology, the number of cyber crimes has increased. Following the foreign experience, the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the National Police of Ukraine have created a new structural unit such as the Cyber police. The purpose of the Cyber police in Ukraine was to reform and develop units of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Ukraine, which provided training and working of highly qualified specialists involved in combating cybercrime and able to apply the latest technologies in their activities. It is the OSCE projects that have helped to improve professional skills and train highly-qualified workers in this field.

To sum up, Ukraine, with the support of other countries, actively implement foreign experience in the system of training and education of police officers. Along with the theoretical part, there are practical classes with the involvement of specialists and officers. Analyzing the level of crime in the country, there are changes in the structure of the National Police. Because of the creation of new units, the education system changes and improves, new skills are practiced. Ukraine is on a difficult, but at the same time on a successful way to reform the Ministry of Internal Affairs.
